About me

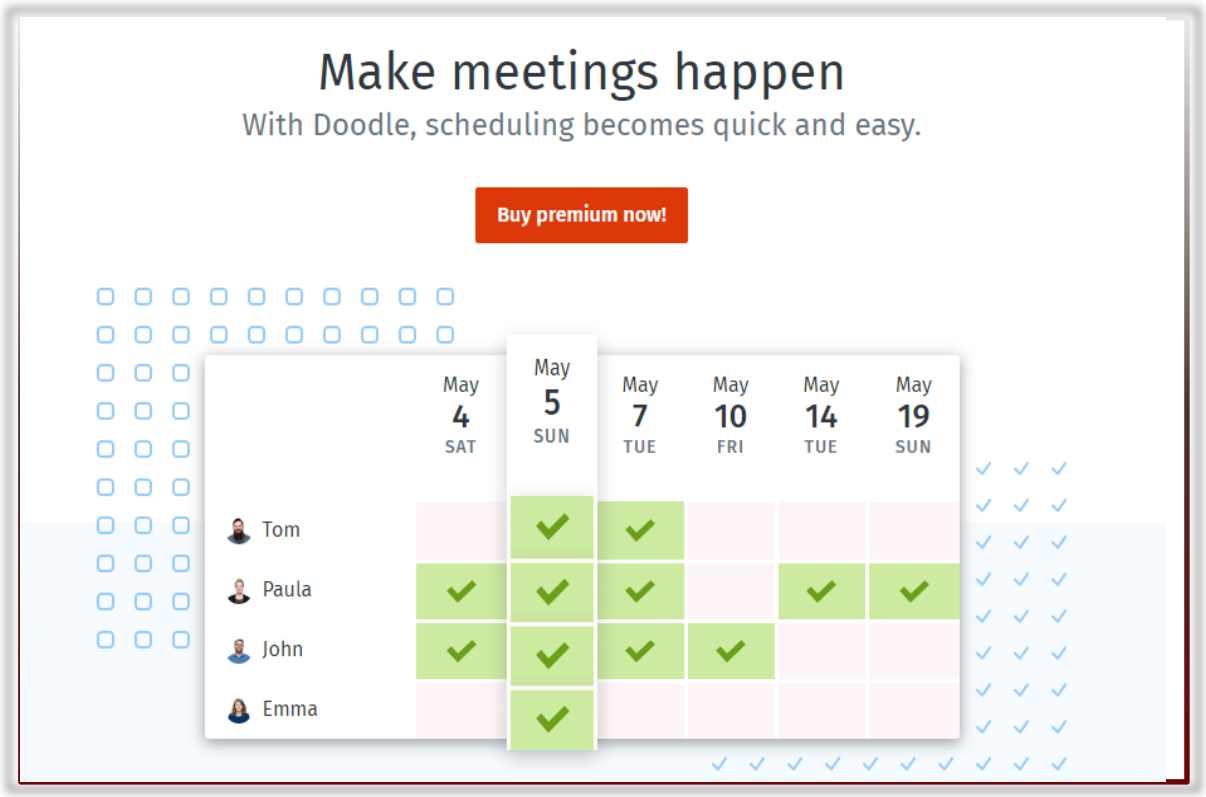
Offline teaching/training

- Have been doing it for 12 years
- BA in English + a lot of additional training and professional development
- Currently, I'm teaching offline in the IT industry

Online teaching/coaching

- Have been teaching online for 3 years
- I enjoy it very much because it's very diverse and interesting
- It gives a lot of opportunities for growth, learning and professional development

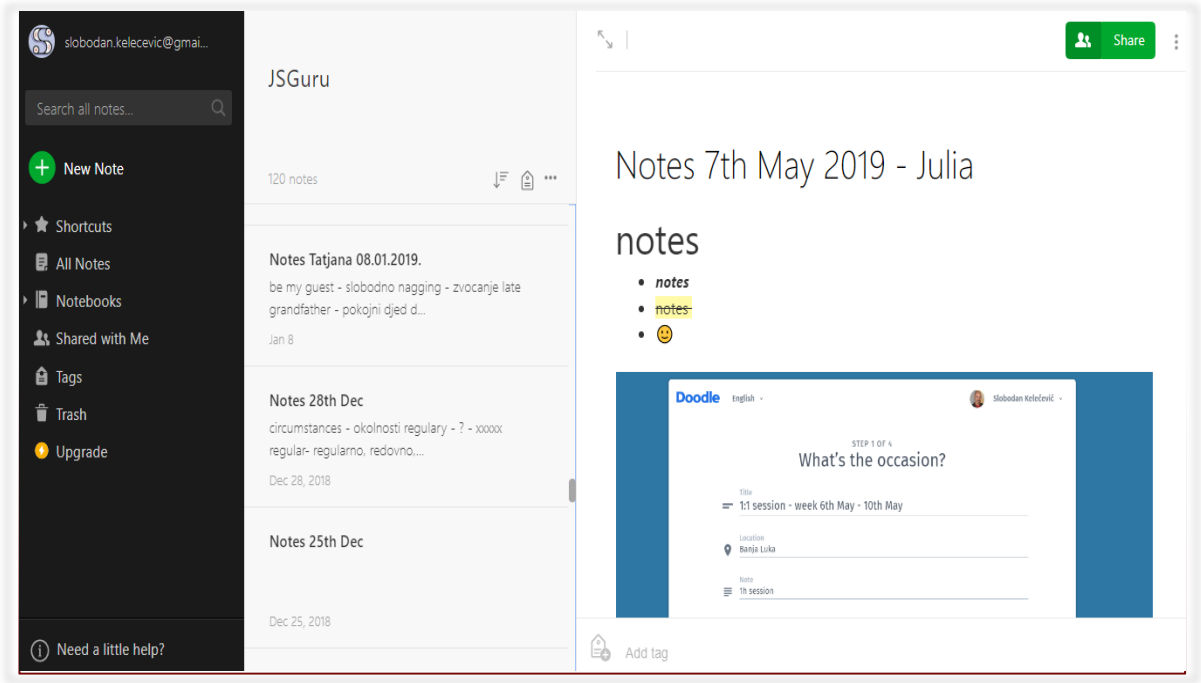
Doodle - scheduling



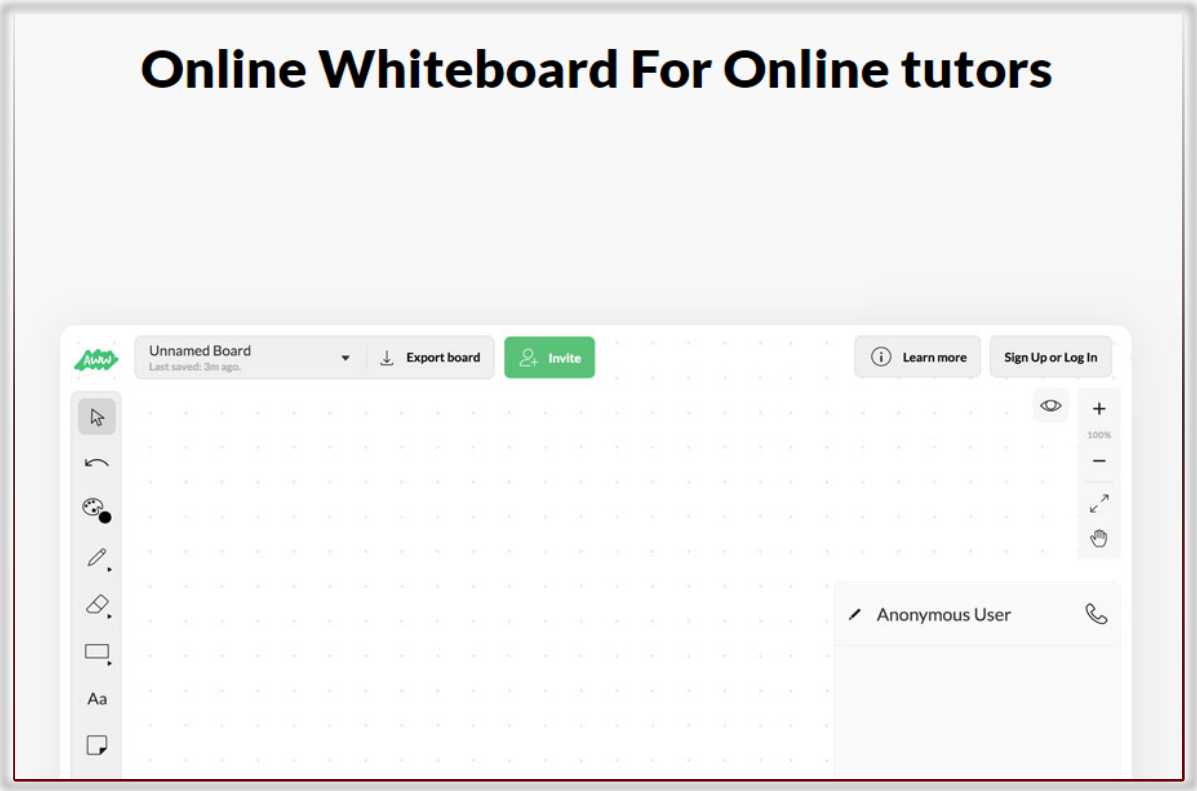
- Makes scheduling easy and fast
- Very convenient when scheduling with more than 2 people
- Free and paid versions of the application (free is enough for teachers)

Evernote – note-taking

- It works great everywhere: Windows, iOS, Android
- Super easy to attach and share all kinds of content
- Free and paid versions of the application (free is enough for teachers)
- All notes in one place – nothing is lost (I've got years of notes on Evernote)



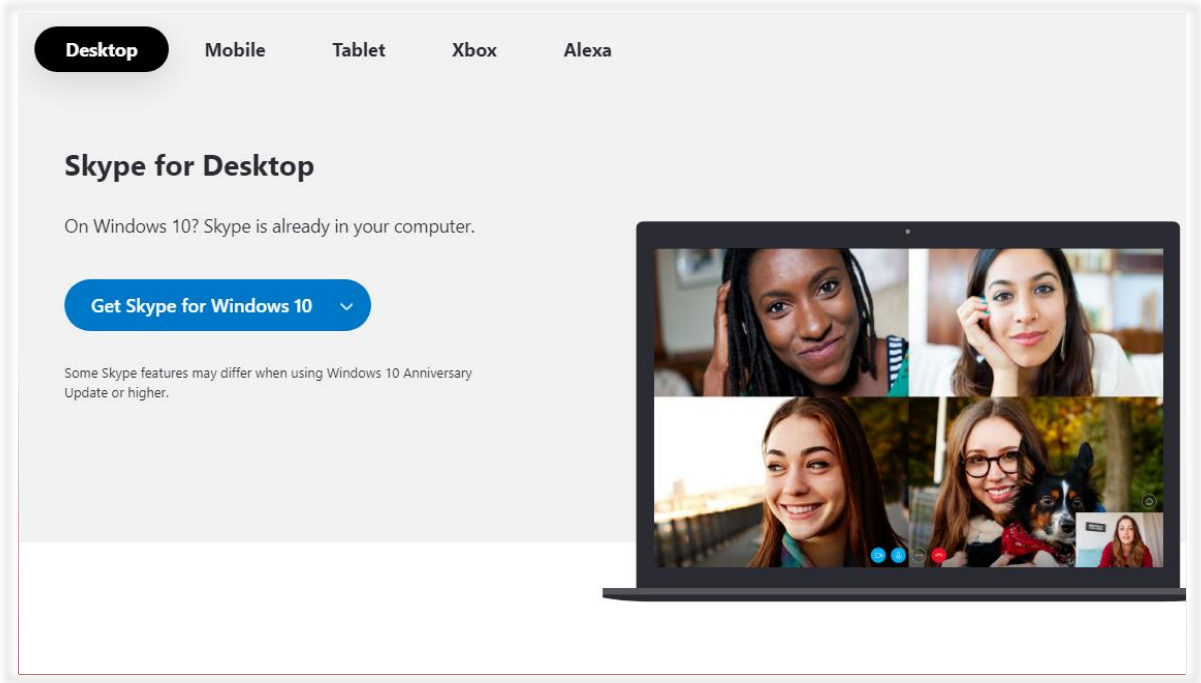
AWW – online whiteboard



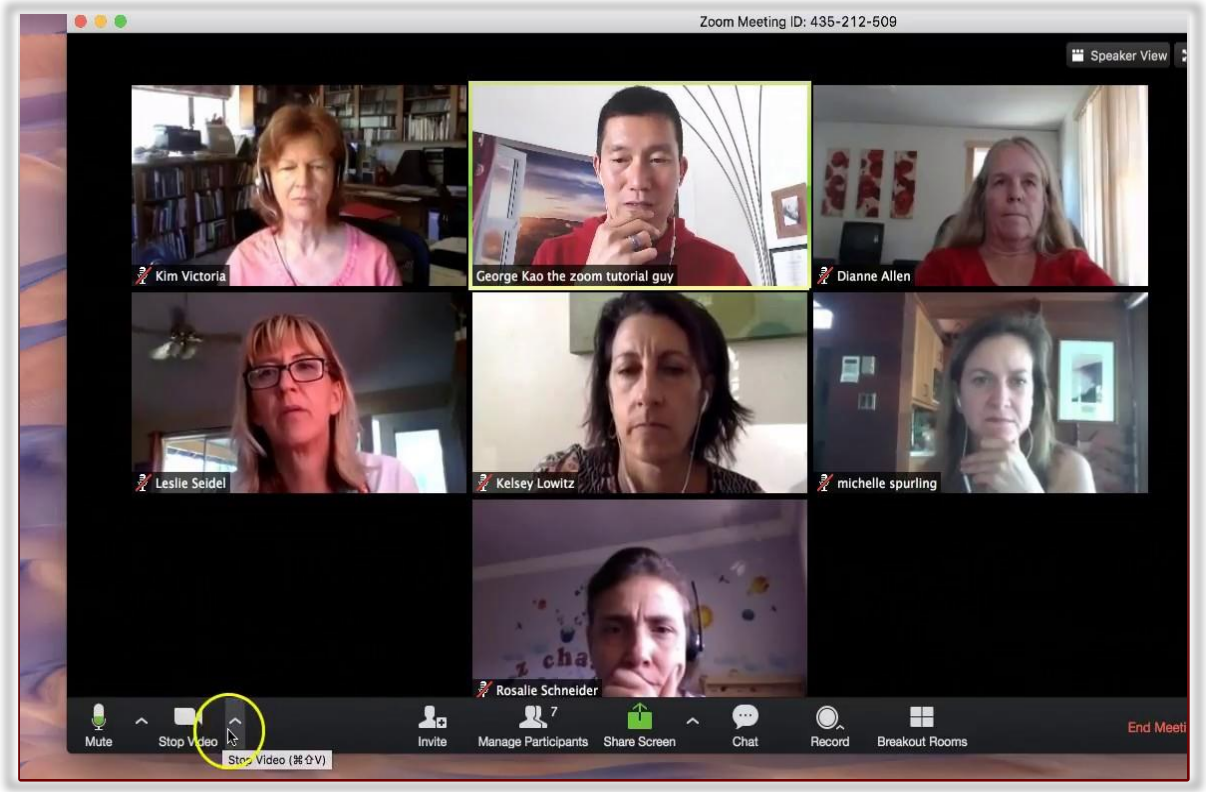
- Get students involved so they become doers, not just observers
- Use great flexibility of options and do it in real time
- Free and paid versions of the application (free is enough for teachers)

Skype – video calls

- It is universal, used across all platforms Windows, iOS, Android
- Very easy to use and familiar to everyone – all ages ☺
- Free version of the application (free version has all important functionality)
- It is easy to make recordings now (audio and video) for feedback to student



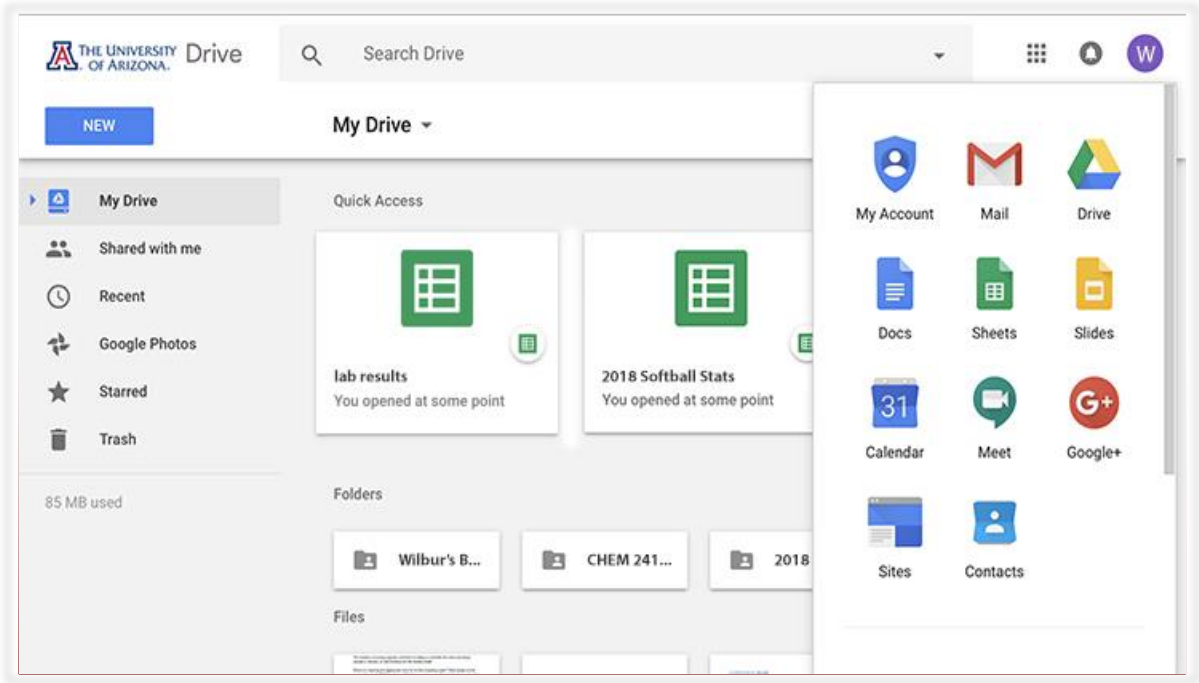
Zoom – video calls



- Great for group format
- Easy and intuitive to use
- Easily record your sessions for great feedback
- Free and paid versions of the application (free has some limitations)

Google drive – cloud storage

- It is free and it is easy to combine with other free Google services e.g. Google docs
- Familiar to practically everyone and can be used immediately
- As soon as you register you get 15Gb of free cloud storage
- It can be used on ALL platforms and device types

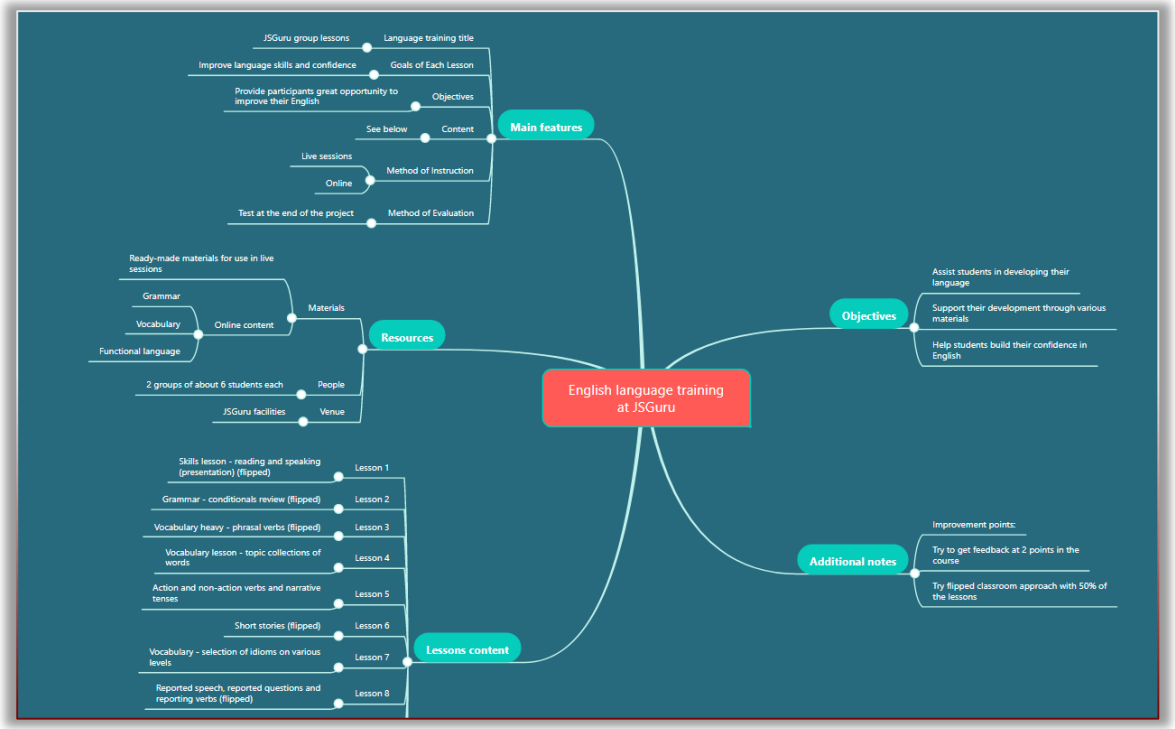


QR Codes – easy sharing

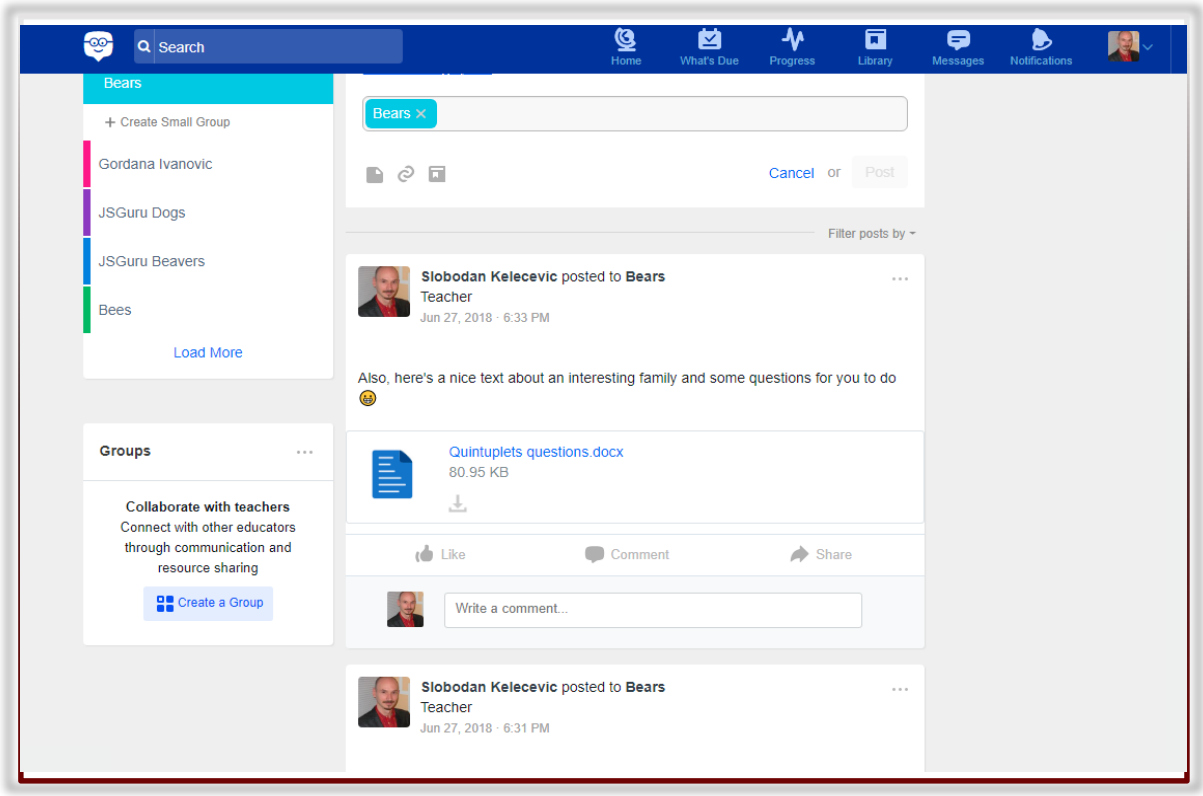
- Great for quick sharing – just share as a picture
- All devices can read it (easily available)
- Free to use software
- Can be used to download material later (convenient)

MindMeister – mind maps

- Mind maps for planning teaching activities
- Easy to plan out entire semester of teaching content – great for visual types
- Can be customized and prints in a friendly format
- The free version is more than enough for teachers



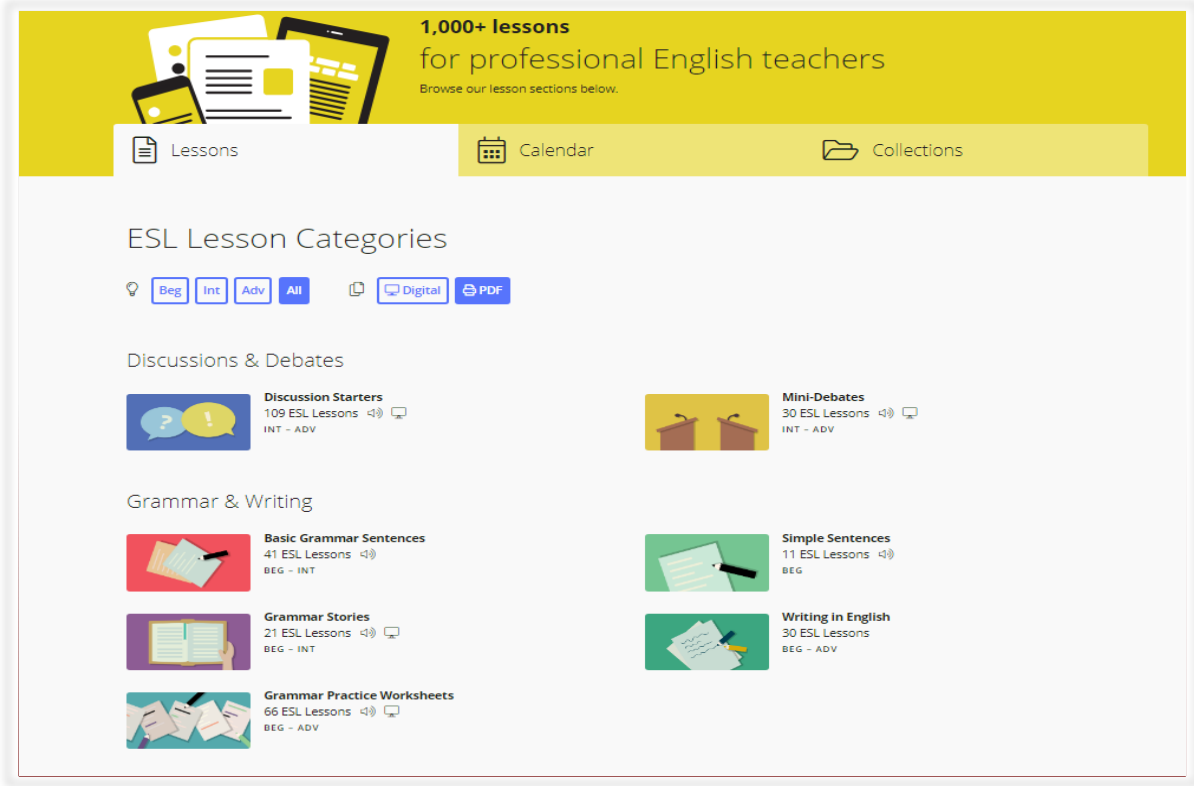
Edmodo – educational platform



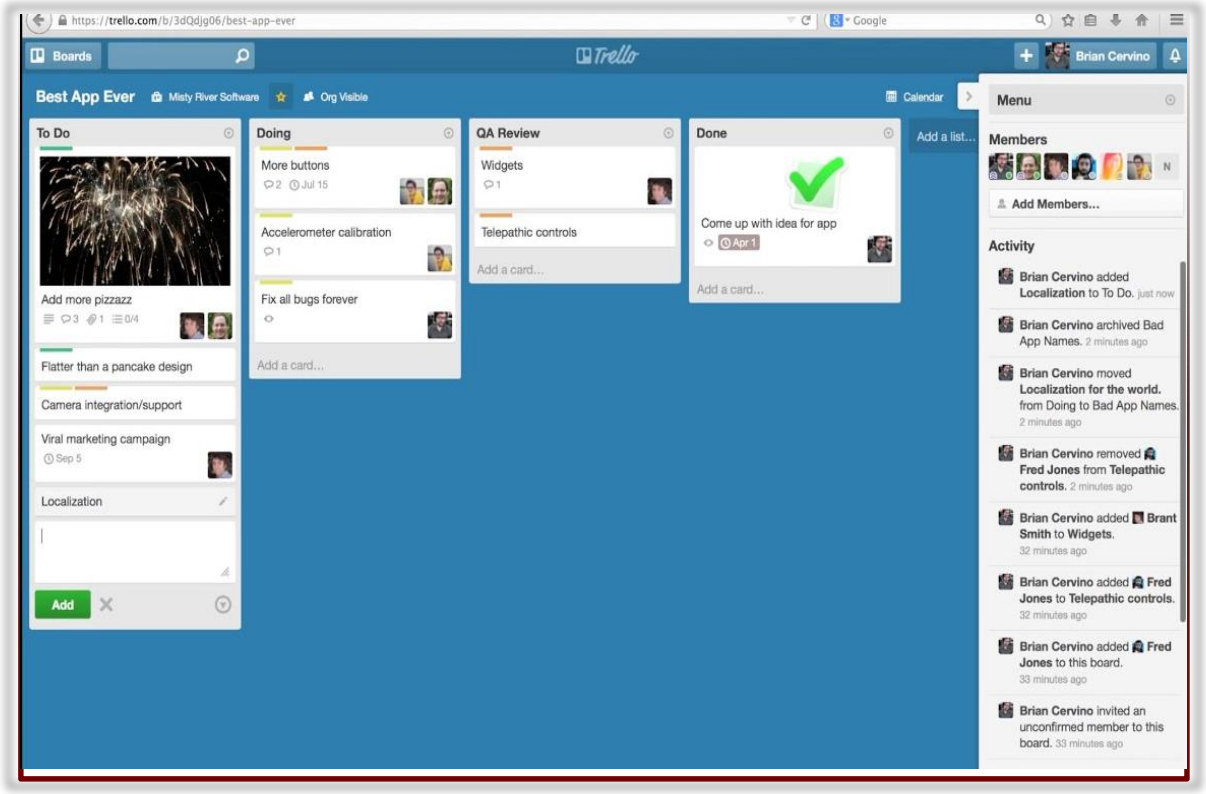
- Using the educational platform is completely free
- Looks very much like a social networking site so you can start using it immediately
- You can make groups for students or just have 1:1 spaces
- You can easily: create polls, quizzes, give out assignments with due dates, monitor progress, include parents, etc.

ESL Library – resources

- Everything is ready to be used immediately (teacher + student versions of lessons)
- You can select materials based on topic, calendar (holidays), collections (e.g. health and safety lessons)
- There is a range of level from beginner to advanced
- Available for download: more than 2500 flashcards, more than 1000 lessons, themed resources, etc.
- How much time to go to ESL Library site, open and download a lesson/materials and post it on Edmodo for students? (answer - ___ min)



Trello – productivity tool



- It is the perfect organizational tool – personal and professional
- Excellent for team work – easy for the whole team to follow
- Free and paid versions of the application (the free version is ok for teachers)
- It is a big time saver in your time management
